

As the executive director of the JP4 Foundation - an organization born to honor the short life of Johnny Price IV, December 4th is always a tough day for me to navigate. It brings feelings of sadness, grief, and reflection.

During one of my first meetings with John and Lisa Price, I asked what they hoped to have their son's foundation accomplish, Lisa looked at me with a tear in her eye, and a smile on her face and, without hesitation, said, "To improve the lives of as many kids as possible – that's what John-John would have wanted."

Eight years later, we continue to deliver on Lisa's vision. The JP4 Foundation is improving the lives of children with healthy food, healthy activity, and most importantly, healthy relationships. Year round, we make sure kids in some of our toughest communities have supportive and healthy relationships with young adult mentors from their community.

Today, I am asking for something far more valuable than money. I am asking for your time. Four minutes. The JP4 Foundation is improving the lives of children and making a difference. In honor of Johnny, please invest four minutes to watch how young lives are changed.

I know Johnny is looking down on us from heaven. I hope everything this foundation does continues to remind you of the love Johnny had for others.

Warm regards,
